But government after government chose to take the risk, for several, not in them-selves ignoble, reasons. The assumptions were probably always the same: that the inflation would only be mild; that it could be stopped; and, above all, that mild inflation seemed a painless way of main-taining full employment, encouraging growth and expand-ing the social services—all

From Paul Routledge Labour Editor Brighton Mr Wilson did everything but name the date of the general electioo in a speech to the Trades Union Congress in Brighton vesterday that sig-nalled the mobilization of the Labour movement'a electoral effort effort.

Io a long exposition of the Government's achievements since taking office aix months ago, he hinted beavily several times that polling day was only a matter of weeks away, and made a spirited defence of the social contract that underlined Labour's evident intention to use that relationship with the unions as a main plank in its care cases By Our Social Services Correspondent

The Maria Colwall case underlined the need for children to have indepandent representation in care proceedings, that National Society for the Pre-vention of Crualty to Children said yesterday. That idea, which is being considered by the Government for inclusion in the forthcoming Children Bill, has long been urged by the society in official quarters.

The society, in its first pub lic response to the report of the ioquiry into Maria's death, said two changes were needed in the way supervision orders were carried out. Officials should have a right to insist on medical examination of a child aod should be required make periodic reports. Maria, who was beaten 10 death at the age of seven by her stepfather in January, 1973, was subject 10 a supervision order exercised by a local anthority social worker. Mrs Dapbne Kirby, a society ins-pector, was also involved in the case, and the report crit-icized her.

The Rev Arthur Morton, dir ector of the society, said yes-terday that the report was fair in criticizing Mrs Kirby for misreading an incident in April, 1972, when Maria was 11 reported to have a black eye and a bruised face. But Mrs

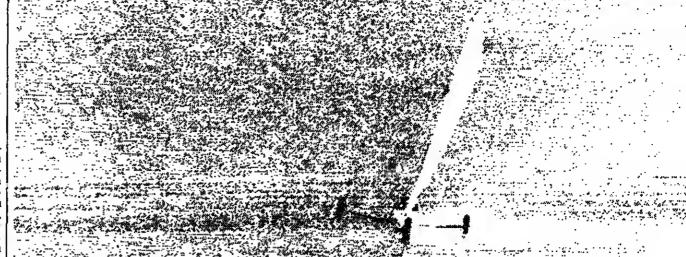

Kirby was grossly overworked at the time because she was doing the work of two officers. She had heen assured that Maria woold receive medical attention, but that did not happen. The society accepted the report's criticism that its own message-recording system was partly to blame for the failure to protect Maria. A new national system had since been introduced. But it rejected the criticism in the minority report that it had gone beyond its brief in removing Maria from an unsetisfactory foster-home and returning ber to the aunt and uncle who cared for ber for most of ber life. The society's brief was to protect children and its action had been ratified subsequently by the courts and the social service department involved.

The society already runs a voluntary register of suspected cases of child-battering in the Manchester area, but would prefer such registers to be based on the courts making supervision orders.

Society's attack : The Respoo sible Society, whose sponsors include Lord Shawcross, Sir John Peel and Lady Snow, said yesterday that the report of the Sexual Law Reform Society was totally evil.

A statement issued on behalf of the Responsible Society's executive committee said : "The idea of removing the law against incest is the height of dangerous irresponsibility, which can in no way he justi-fied by a claim that this is nhenomenon in problem families."

As far as the age of consent was concerned, the society said the report was "unpardonably and morally frivolous".

In Britain, bread can be brown or white, crusty or wrapped, plain or fancy, branded or otherwise. There is a ready choice, and the housewife who pays the piper calls the tune. Her main choice is clear - the white, sliced and wrapped loaf. This accounts for nearly 60 per cent of bread eaten in the home as compared, for instance, to about $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of wholemeal bread.

round, the housewife can expect to find a choice of bread covering anything up to 30-35 types, shapes and sizes.

Must the small baker go to the wall?

Who makes the bread you buy? About two-thirds of it comes from three large groups of flour millerbakers. In addition to these large firms, there are about 100 bakers who distribute their bread over wide areas, and some 4,000 small 'master bakers', each of whom owns one or two shops and bakes on the shop premises.

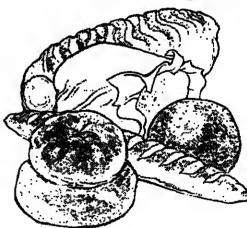

The way Government price controls have been operating has hit hardestat those bakers who are unable to support their bread production by other diversified activities. If maintained over a long period, unrealistic price controls will intensify these adverse pressures.

Threatened though it is by an unsatisfactory return on its capital and effort, the baking industry still offers an extremely wide choice of product. Even though the standard white sliced loaf happens to be the most popular, 'fancy breads' of many kinds are made by both the large firms and their smaller competitors.

What price Mr. Big?

The industry believes that there is room for all kinds of baker, that the housewife is the first to benefit from the healthy competition which exists. On the one hand, the smaller baker offers a valuable local service; on the other hand. the larger bakers ensure that their branded loaves are as readily available in the Orkneys, for instance, as in London - this, in itself. is an extraordinary service which is offered in few other countries.

There's no plot, no backstairs manipulation: go where you like to buy the bread you like. Choose your loaf and use it -- it's still the best food value in Britain.

call for a united Britain to heat the economic crisis. Mr Wilson

Thie is the first congress since the general election last February. The only election in our history fought under a state of emergency, A Britain governed without Parlia-ment, but hy emergency powers, because tha Tory blitz on the trade union movement had hrought Britain to crisis conditions.

to assist the hardest hit rate-payers. This was what we faced when we took office in March, just six months ago. The deteriorating balance of payments, rising un-employment, price lucreases with worse to come; the certainty of the triggering of wage thresholds, month after month. But transcending all else in terms of rising costs and prices, and our external payments problem, was a factor for which no government could ha held responsible; a sur-charge on the etandard of living of every man, woman and child in this country. A surcharge faced every man, woman and child in this country. A surcharge faced by every other advanced country too, and in many countries far poorer than ours, a surcharge caused by the quadrupling of oil prices, spreading through tha economy and through tha family budgets of millions like a cancer. But aven before this surcharge budgets of millions like a cancer. But even before this surcharge, before a single oil-producer had increased prices, or turned off a tap, we warned that the country was facing a huge deficit. In fact the deficit in 1973 epproached £2,500m, monumentally greater that what we inherited in 1964. So Britain was seriously in the red. The pound floated further down; the era of massive borrowing had hegun.

hegun. Oil simply made the situation worse, raising the total trade deficit we inherited, oil and non-oil, from £2,500m to over £4,000m. And Britain's ability to meet the problems forced upon us from out-side this country was immeasurably side this country was immeasurably weakened by the doctrinaire con-frontation over Staga Three and the imposition of the three-day

And that was why, less then 72 hours after the Government was formed we moved to and the state of emergency. The incoming Lahour Govern-ment did nut disguise from the British people in the months leed-larg uo to the general election, and during the election cempaign itself, the magnitude of the nroh-lems we were facing as a nation, three months,

This government is determined This government is determined that this propersy shall confinue. And we in Britain have it in us to ensure that we get our non-oil payments into balence. We shall do this, rejecting policies of import restriction or deflation. Our task is to increase world trade, not restrict it. Our task is to persuade other to pursue an example others to pursue en expansionist policy. As we had warned, we found on coming into office the certainty of e rise in unemployment through-out this year, and worse to come in 1975.

In 1975. The panic measures introduced by the previous government last December, sleshing local authority expenditure, expenditure on health end education and the public ser-vices, made it certain that unemployment in the construction industry would rise removalesely industry would rise remorselessly in the months following the February election. And to add to that, unemployment was the total collapse of the housing programme, public and private, a result of the Conservatives' politically conParty and the Trades Union Con-gress. We reached agreement on the social contract which the Conservative Government would food subsidies. The subsidies an-Conservative Government would have liked to achieve but failed to achieve. That social contract was Divided by the unbending bureaucratic inequity of the pay freeze and Stages two and three. Dividend by the lndustrial Relations Act. We here had to face this inheri-tance, these problems, as a minority government. From the moment the last election results were declared, there were not lacking those who sought to craata and mani-pulate an unholy alliance, an unrealiatic coalition for the pur-pose of keeping in power those the electorate had rejected; coalitions that were still heing expressed in irresponsible parila-mentary votes in July on our Bill to repeal the industrial Relations Act, votes they thought they could get away with because they were protected by the safety net of the electoral close season. Now they know that their safety net has gone. monthe Recent comment has sought to ments. This is not what the social contract is about. This is not what the general couracil statement of June 25, endorsed so clearly by the congress yesterday, is about. It is indeed concerned with infla-tion, and the means which are essential to fight inflation. But it is not a latter-day Pay Board operating in Great Russell Street. The statement of February, 1973, and tha TUC's own statements since then, in April and in June this year, go far wider than in-comes. What they represent is a way of lifa for Britain based on social and economic justice. They cover as e first priority

They cover as e first priority pensions for the aged and those whose claim on the national pro-duction is greatest_because their attack on the prohlems of unthat their safety net has head is greatest. Incy cover an attack on the problems of un-employment, not merely the national unemployment situation but also the unemployment prob-lems of a chronically unbalanced regional ecooomy. They cover an attack on the problems of production and pro-ductivity and a purposiva direc-tion of the economy for the fulfilment of national aims, par-ticularly exports and importgone. Let it be clear, in the weeks gone. Let it be clear, in the weeks of political controversy we have to face, that those problems I have described, which our prede-cessors knew confronted them, still face Britain today. Any party leader who, for political purposes, seeks to pretend they do not exist, or bases his election campaign on offering improvident electoral bribes, is betraying the country whose mandate he seeks. The peopla of Britain will insist on knowing what needs to he done; fust at important, what can be done. The policles pro-pounded at the next election must be promises capable of winning the confidence of tha people, not ficularly exports and import-ticularly exports and import-saving. Above all they were aimed at replacing comflict and confronta-tion; by the creation and concilia-tion; by the creation of those institutions we bad laboriously worked out in those opposition years, the Conciliation and Arbi-tration Service, the standing Royal Commission on the Distribution of Income and Wealth covering the whole system of rewards in society. They covered the ending of erhitrary legislation whether on incomes or industrial relations. In six months we have acted confidence of the people, not cynically aimed only at their votes, And they must be promises which will be carried out. For the programme we put fefore Parliament in the Queen's speech was addressed to dealing with our long-term problems, to In six months we have acted faster and more firmly than any government in this country, to honour our pledges and create the healing the wounds, to unibing the country, which is what the vast majority of our people want to do. The Labour Government has environment we all envisaged when the social contract was agreed. We said, first and foremost, that The Labour Government has proceeded from the standpoint that unity could be found only by a social contract between all our people. All our people, that is, everyone here and millions out-side, at every level in lunkstry, who are concerned to put their becks into the task of restoring our lost production and assets and remeving our drive in world We sold, hist and foremost, that the key to any alternative strategy was to control the prices of those items that loom largest in the family hudget. For an old age pensioner couple the saving is about 35p a week. Shirley Williams has negotiated with the retail trade a list of essen-tial foods and bousehold supplies which will be continuously on sale at special ther prices. The items which have been chosen are of special importance in the budgets which have been chosen are of special importance in the budgets of low income families : potatoes, beef, lamb or chicken, baby milk as well es bread, botter and cheese. The Industrial Rela-tions Court has passed, un-lamented, into the lumber room of history. We shall follow the repeal of the Industrial Relations Act by introducing our Employ-ment Protection Bill, Labour's charter for those at work, and an Industrial Demncracy Bill. We said that we would abolish the Pay Board, with all its Tory apparatus of statutory controls. Parliament abolished it six weeks ago, We beye established, as we

On mortgage rates, which the Cruservatives have just heard about, we stopped what would have been a certain increase to 13 per cent if the Conservatives had remained in office. We said that we would increase pensions to f10 for single pen-sioners and f16 for a married couple. The largest ever increase since the national insurance system began in 1948—and tha quickest implemented.

In the demanding area of technological achievement known as "avionics" Ferranti have many points: all sharp and ideal for their purpose. Just as a dart depends for its performance on a carefully balanced combination of finely sharpened steel and featherlight flight, modern aviation demands a marriage of very precise mechanical engineering with electronic techniques. This is the combination which makes possible the highly sophisticated aids to control, navigation and operation which are essential in today's aircraft and space vehicles.

Easy to demand: and, because we are so accustomed to seeing successively more difficult requirements successfully met, easy to undervalue the achievement. The point is worth making that the British Avionics Industry is the strongest in Europe and a very important part of that strength is Fermanti.

30 years of gyroscope instrument experience, pioneering all the way. Airborne radar in the 1950's. Inertial navigation and displays in the 1960's. Lutely airborne.computers, helicopter sighting and stabilisation systems, lasers and ever higher performance inertial equipment, with development projects for all these and more stretching forward to the late 1970's and the 1980's. Successful systems and equipments in Lightning, Buccaneer, Concorde, Harrier, Phantom, Jaguar, ELDO launcher, Black Arrow, prove the point. The choice, against world wide competition, of the Ferranti Digital Inertial Navigator for MRCA and for Japan's FST-2 reinforces it.

A Ferranti platform will guide Europe's Ariane launcher and Ferranti is the contractor for the British Advanced Inertial Navigator. These and other new projects in lasers, radar and infra-red devices make sure the capability will still be there in years to come.

The achievements of the gyro pioneers of thirty years ago are paralleled by the confidence and enthusiasm of today's Ferranti team. UK technology in avionics is strong. Ferranti helped make it strong and Ferranti intend keeping it strong. Point made.

minds on school milk and meals. They wanted the end but they rejected the means. The neans in industrial terms, the means in the creation of a nanonal system of social justice covering all our people. They rejected then, and they reject now, the changes in their policies which alone can justify demanding something very difficult to ask for, the ecceptance in a free society, in a seller's mar-ket, of a code of conduct which rejects the exploitation of market ket, of a code of conduct which rejects the exploitation of market conditions. And one reason why they are in-capable of delivering the necessary conditions of a social contract is thet over a wide sector of the national conomy they want their allies to be able to cash in on whatever sellers' market may de-relop, as so recently they cashed in on the demand for land, the demand demand for property, the demand for money--while asking labour to show the restraint they neither profess nor enjoin on their wealthiest sopporters. Trade union members to whom they address their bomilies were expected to dig the coal, or run the trains, or collect the refuse, or clean the hospitals, while aposties of the acquisitive society were free to make more money in an afternoon on a non-productive property deal or financial transaction, more money than a coal-face worker or a railway man or a farm worker or a nurse cao carn in a lifetime of service to the community.

munity. The Conservative leadership has declared the policy on which it will fight the next election. A volum-tary policy for dealing with infla-tion if it can be obtained, on Conservative terms. Otherwise higher unemployment, cuts in the contal services a lower standard social services, a lower standard of living, and a return to the rigours of statutory controls. The Labour Government has re-jected the statotory determination of wages and asserts the policy of the social contract with its back-or wages and asserts the policy of the social contract with its back-ground of collective bargaining, conclliation and agreed arbitration. Not as a matter of principle only, hut as a matter of past experience, here and abroad. A democratic soclety can impose statutory con-trol of incomes over a short period. We did it in 1966 with the coopera-tion of the congress here in Brighton, despite deep reservations on the part of many delegates. Not a single day was lost in industrial disputes arising from this statutory wage freeze of four months and a half. The cost of living the following year rose by less than 12 per cent, something in the later months of 1973 and 1974. But it could not last. Even industries, it had to be eased and ultimately rescinded. This has been the experience in other democratic countries. The Americans had some success with their first prices and incomes policy, hut when they sought to tighten it a second time if troke down. Stage Three in this country was riddled by the growth of anomalies; it took the Pay Board nearly six mooths to produce a report on anomalies, and 10 months (including three months of the coal-mining dispute) to get together a report on relativities. Even so, when we came into office we were faced with the problem of the nurses and other bealth service workers, the post-men, the rollwaymen, the London husmen and tube drivers, whose special-case settlements and now saying. row what social democracy main-tains is that when the going is toughest it is more than ever necessary to base our policies on social justice, to protect the weak, the poor, the disabled, to help those least able to help themselves, and to maintain and improve their standards. standards. The crisis we ara facing demands a still greater emphasis on social justice, as well as economic justice, than at any time in this This means, in economic terms, giving priority, both in government policy and in rewards, to those who contribute most to the creation of our national wealth and income, and bere I include not merely those who produce goods for our own use and for export, but also those engaged in our essential services. special-case settlements and arrangements have now invoked the wrath of the Conservative leadership.

No, you cannot settle wages by legislenon for long, and you cer-taioly cannot do it again and again. Moreover, Stage Three was merked services. Moreover, stage interee was mericed by the most chronic poaching of labour, principally from small firms to big ones, specielly under the guise of redesignation of duties. And nowhere more than in Fleet Street, where the up-graded redesignees rushed to pour out their ink and scarce newsprint in favour of the rigid maintenance of an incomes policy on everybody else. This Government therefore seeks a solution based on voluntary coperation in a responsible demo-

operation in a responsible demo-cracy. Our, Conservative opponents seek to attack the social contract on the basis that it may not be 100 per cent auccessful. That la no argument against making it as suc-cessful as we can. And it will be our duty to counter the Conserva-tives' argument in the next few weeks by reminding the nation that Conservative policy, culminating in the three-day week and the dark-bess in our streets and offices, was 100 per cent unsuccessful. Of course, every large sertlement

That is why in our recent policy statement we have stressed plan-ning agreements between the alocted government and those vaat industrial groups which exercise so great a power within our com-munity, and not least in local com-munity, and not least in local com-munities. Their decisions can affect the welfare of the nation as a whole, or of the individual worker and his family. We totally reject the doctains I believe that an essential part of the social contract is pressing on with productivity agreemants. The rigidities of Stage One, Stage Two and Stage Three excluded produc-divity agreements because they can be abused. We press for them on a basis of trust and responsibility. In one sense, and of course we have had this from the moment that the incoming Labour Govern-ment was seen to be a minority government, it is regretable that these great issues of our damo-cracy should be the cut and thrust of a general election. But in least let this national But it least let this national debate be constructive, aimed at a worker and his family. We totally reject the doctrine that decisions can be taken in some remote environment-board room decisions perhaps not related to production, to national priorities-decisions which could have no higher motive than the stripping of soma property asset for quick financial gain-when the result can be the impoverishment and desolation of a local com-munity, and redundancies which overnight can destroy all the hopes and olars and ideals of a thousand families. Or even more remote decisions debate be constructive, aimed at a great partnership between govern-ment and lodustry, and in and across industry. Our policies, our hopes for a better future depend on making a reality of this part-nership in the social contract. There is no other way. No one, no other party, has even begun to produce a credible alternative. I bave said there is no dis-agreement among the main parties ebout the gravity of this economic crisis. The Conservative leader-ship has recently endorsed what I have repeatedly said this sum-mer, that because of the crisis we full significance of Invisible trans-actions. The Labour Government wants to see industry prosperous and this means a stock market strong and confident enough to help industry raise the finance required for the Industrial investment in new plant, machinery and capacity so urgently needed, so long lacking. For this, investors must have confidence in the vlability of industry and that-means its profitability. Finance must be the servant of the industrial community, not its master. City instructions should direct themselves more purpose-fully to providing finance for pro-ductive industry, instead of alding and abetting the speculative ex-cesses of recent years, or giving way to pank more hard and a week or two ago. What our democracy has to fear is not so much the private armies springing from the dreams of superanmared colonels as the division of Britain between em-battled battalions representing sec-tional interests, a division as irre-levant and remote from the needs of our country as the Wars of the Roses centuries ago. has been increasingly concen-trated; power which, abused and pushed to its ultimate conclusion, can destroy the community which created it. This is the time to recall Brimin to the ideals which inspired the trade union movement in harder times when the going for Brimin had never been so good and the going for so many of our people had never been worse. These were the days when the textile workers of Lancashire were, prepared to starve rather than support slavery in America; when micers in South Wales or Durham Or in other Coal-fields, themselves living on the poverty line, were never so poor that they could not provide belp for the family of a comrade who had been killed in the pit, or whose life ind been destroyed by black lung.

In line with this philosophy is our determination to ensure that the British people enjoy the bene-fit of the great national assets of oil reserves which lie beneath the continental shelf. The Conservative Party dithered on this, because they could not bring themselves to take the rewards of exploiding those reserves away from private interests. These are the ideals we must those reserves away from private interests. The proposals which we have put forward exactly fulfil the pledges that the Labour Party gave to Scotland and Wales and the peopla of Britain as a whole before and during the general election proclaim in the coming weeks and months and I must tell this Congress, the difficult years that still lie abead. We are all members one of another, as the naloos are members one of enother in the nembers one of enother in the wider world community. For the coming general election is not just a decision about pollti-cal power, ebout personalities or about the ins and the outs and party machines. On September 1, the U.S. Air Force's SR-71 broke the transatlantic speed record from New York to London.

Piloted by Major James V. Sullivan with Major Noel F. Widdifield as reconnaissance systems officer, the Lockheed-built plane cruised at an average speed of 1,817 mph. While covering 3,490 nautical miles at an average height of over 80,000 feet.

But the flight was not just for the record. It was an operational training flight conducted by the Strategic Air Command en route to the Farnborough Air Show in Britain. Where SAC now has it on static display.

Building record-breaking planes is nothing new to Lockheed. Besides building the world's fastest plane, we've built the world's biggest airlifter. The C-5A. And the quietest and most comfortable of the largest jetliners. The L-1011 TriStar. The fastest, the biggest, the quietest and most comfortable all examples of Lockheed's leadership in aircraft technology.

Medical team traces back Idea of contact with other outbreak of influenza planets attacked From Pearce Wright

From Our Science Correspondent

An eminent astronomer ex-plained yesterday wby other civilizations probably existed in the galaxy, but was highly criti-cal of those who supported the idea of an expensive international research project to try to establish communicatioo hetween stars.

Professor D. R. Bates, of Queen's Uoiversity, Belfast, told the British Association that 40 years ago ioformed opinion was that we were virtually alone in the universe.

Most astronomers now thought that planetary systems arose in the course of the normal evolution of stars from nebulae, and were therefore very common. Direct evideoce was lacking, but indirect evi-dence from theoretical work based on extrementical absorb based on astronomical observations supported the proposition. The change in the theory of the origin of planetary systems obviously greatly increased the expectation that a neighbouring star might foster a civilizatino. However, if contact could be made it would be expected to be with a techoological civiliza-tion far plder than our own. The distribution of stars showed that the time for a radio signal to travel to the nearest probable technological civiliza-tion would probably be more than 500 years.

If our past surprises you, our future will amaze you.

On 30 July, 1874, Parliament passed the Building Societies Act. It gave the building societies of this country a corporate existence.

And it gave this country nothing less than a social revolution.

One hundred years ago, home ownership was reserved for the very privileged few.

By the middle of the twentieth century, about a third of all dwellings in m the United Kingdom were owner occupied. Today, the figure is well over 50%. More than 9 million homes owned by their occupiers. And more than 85% of the homes being bought on mortgage today are financed through a building society-half of them by first time purchasers.

With the help of the building societies, it's been a steady climb to more and more people owning their own homes.

Without the help of the building societies, it would have been impossible, And what of the future?

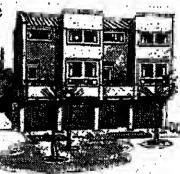

More of the same.

To continue the climb towards what the majority of people in this country wantniore home ownership.

To continue to act as the best possible

To continue to give savers and investors a wide-range of savings plans, offering safety, security, liquidity and the best possible interest rates.

A senior Commissioo official put up an unconvincing per-formance at a press conference today when pressed to justify the proposed overall increase of per cent in times of rampant inflation.

If one subtracted proposal for new expenditure, he said, the projected increase over last year was a "deceot" rate of 16 per cent, scarcely as much as the current inflution rate. Leaving aside increased expenditure on regular items like the farm fund, social find and food aid to poor countries, it was only per cent 9.5

French farmers, keeping up their pressure oo the Govern-ment for higher prices, today demonstrated Lons-le Saunier, in the Jura, in soli-darity with 10 of their col-leagues who are facing trial for destroying property on the estate of President Giscard d'Estaing's sister. Some 1,500 farmers, from five departments, marched to the prefecture demanding the immediate dropping of the charges brought by the Couotess de Froissard de Broissia. They were also insisting on agricul-tural prices being related to the cost of living inder. They are particularly aogered about the price they get for a local cheese.

The Jura branch of the National Fedaration of Farmers'. Unions has already decided to put up two of the 10 local officers of the union who are on trial as protest candi-dates against the Government in two senatorial electicos later this month. The men are accused of beiog ringleaders in the wilful burning down of 300 young fir trees on the estate at Marigna-sur-Velouse.

If you won't spend £1,700 on a car, that's the only excuse for not owning a Lancia.

People seem to have pretty fixed ideas about our cars.

For one, they think they're terribly expensive.

They aren't. Certainly all Lancias are beautifully designed and meticulously built and a check through a comprehensive price chart will soon tell you what excellent value for money they really are.

Especially as all Lancias come fully equipped, no extras to add.

The Beta 1400 for instance costs just ,668.42, car tax and VAT included. And CAR magazine (July 1974) thinks highly of it: 'Performance would do credit to a 1600 or 1800, the comfort is as good as you'll find in a car costing £3,000 and there is an over-riding quality that makes the price tag look like very good value indeed'. CAR's opinion is that for £1,668.42 you get a car which is '...refined to a level not usually found in vehicles of this type (more's the pity) and it is especially well built'. But then Lancias always have been. If all that isn't enough for you, the next step up is the Beta 1600. Its extra 10 bhp give it even better performance than the 1400, yet in their road test (4.5.1974), Motor returned a touring fuel consumption of 31.4 mpg.

Top of the Beta range are the 1800 and 1800ES

ES stands for Equipaggiamento Speciale. Which means that as well as the 5speed gearbox, dual circuit brakes, halogen headlamps, heated rear window and the host of other features that are standard on the other Betas, you also get an integral steel sliding sunroof, electric windows, tinted glass and alloy wheels.

That's not all the choice, we also have three rather special Coupés.

The Fulvia Coupé S3 is probably one of the prettiest cars you can buy. It also has

5-speed gearbox, gives it a top speed well

The Lancia 2000 Coupé and a powerful 1298, V4 engine which, mated to a over 100 mph but with the kind of meagre fuel power steering and are shod with distinctive light alloy wheels.

The differences are in the performance. If you want a car that's fast and extremely comfortable, then the 2000 Coupé is for you.

If you want the same degree of comfort with even more performance, choose the 2000HF Coupé with Bosch electronic fuel injection.

Admittedly, it costs much more than £1,700.

But after a test drive, you'll realise that's hardly an excuse for not owning one.

DO YOU REMEMBER

the 1st of January 1973 when a handful of politicians betrayed 800 years of independent self-government ?

Do you remember ' No Entry Without Full-hearted Consent ?? (and out of 319 Conservative M.P.-whatever their views on Entry-how many told Mr. Heath that he must honour a pledge thus publicly given on behalf of the Party or he must go?).

Do you Remember the careful Lie, that it was to be no more than a trade treaty-such treaty as is offered by Brussels to many countries without osed for Membership at all?

a treaty as is offered by Brussels to many countries without oeed for Membership at all? The promise of large economic advantages deceived only that minority of the British People for whom wishful-thinking outran common-sense. To the majority it was always apparent that vis-a vis' The Six', we were certain to lose more of our own home-market that owe should gain in theirs. And as all can now see, how right they were! Quite apart from our annual deficit from the increased cost of Middle East Oil 'Our deficit is now running at no less than £1,600 millions per annum with the original European Six' (Press, 4.7.74). And this figure still takes no accouot of the increasing size of our annual 'Subscription Fee': that is to rise steadily m an eventual £500 million per annum or thereahouts. All this we have to borrow abroad, at a high rate of interest payment of which each year increases the deficit still further : and all this we must eventually repay. How? It is now clear that the result of continued Membership can only be national bankrupicy.

still further : and all this we must eventually repay. Now? It is now clear that the result of continued Membership can only be national bankrupicy. Yet Mr. Heath's so-called 'European Movement', using funds apparently limitiess, is now to flood the factories with pamphlets threatening the dire results of Withdrawal : 'Inflation, falling living-standards, unemployment ''. He seems not to have noticed that Membership, not Withdrawal, has brought us all three : the inflation indeed was deliberately unleashed by his Governmeot in 1972 In a reckless endeavour to ease their path to Entry, and unemploy-ment (Press, 23.8.74) is increasing at the rate of 90,000 (15%) per month. In fact the effect of Withdrawal upon our trade with Europe can be negligible since like Norway we could negotiate a Trade Treaty (with no Annual Subscription m pay) that would be in the economic sphere indistinguishable from Membership. But would we want to, when the result is £1,600 million added m our annual deficit? The 'European Movement' in fact bases its cannotien on seven falsehoods. The first, that

The 'European Movement' in fact hases its campaign on seven falsehoods. The first, that Membership does not increase the cost of food : ignoring the huge Common Market Levies that we have m pay on butter, cheese, meat, and other items! The second, that the Common Market. 'gives' us various Grants: being careful however not to point out that these are paid with our own money, being far less than we have to pay in. The third, that the Common Market was responsible for the post-war rise in the living-standards of the Six which we now could share: but the rise-now terminated—was in fact due to well-known and quite other causes, the rise to European countries outside the Market having been even greater. The fourth, that 'free-rade' with the original Six is las promised!) proving advantageous: it is in fact resulting in an annual trade-deficit of £1,600 million per annum. The fifth, that we can manipulate the Market Members into accepting our 'leadership' (how conceited can a politician get?) and ao still make our voice heard in the World although no longer a First Class Power; but the Bankrupt is voiceless—it is the money that speaks. The stath, that Membership is a safeguard against war: In fact the Common Market has not added a man or a gun or a plane to the feeble strength of Europe in its confrontation with Russia. The seventh, that in makes for political sublishing in channel in fact. that it makes for political stability in Europe : whereas in fact France and Italy have a Community vote so huge that oo any economic recession we are likely m find ourselves closely enmoshed with two Communist States.

"The Electors" say the Marketeers (and certainly they did their best to keep us unin-formed) " are not competent to judge": but an annual loss of more than £1,600 million on the deal, and the surrender of self-government m unelected bureaucrats in Brussels who over-tide our own Courts and elected Parliament, are not difficult to understand !

Every time you pay your V.A.T. Every time our Courts and elected Parliament are forced to cooform in thousand upoo thoosand of matters great and small to the dictate of our masters in Brassels (according to The Times 24.2.73, the Brussels Regulations and Directives total more than 3,300 per annum-Bureaucracy run crazy). The fight to open the priesthood to American women

In January 1974 Archbishop Michael Ram-There had been increasing criticism of the church's bandling of the issue since 1970, but after Louisville it was no longer sey of Canterbury celebrated at a large eucharistic service beld in Riverside Church, New York City. Participating in the service with him were bishops from the muted. Many people believed it would be years before the church had its first woman priest. This feeling was reinforced American Episcopal and Canadian Anglithe swing towards cooservatism, both in the church and in American society, and also by the 1973 election of Presidiog A young priest kuelt at the altar rail to receive the chalice from a deacon. He bent Bisbop John Allin. a long-time oppnnent of women priests. After the Louisville deci-sion, the Philadelphia ordioations were all but inevitable

The first sien was a statement issued by 50 Episcopal bishops, favouring full ordin-ation for women and stating "this issue of moral justice and theological justificatioo must not rest until all have known equal treatment in their search for vocation

Six months later this same woman knelt with 10 others in Philadelphia's Church of the Advocate while, in an act of defiance Then, last December, the church had its first challenge. During a New York ordination service for several men to the priest-brout fire women deacons were also presented for ordination. Bisbop Paul Moore told them. "I feel bound to wait on the church before laying hands on my sisters whose proination the church does not allow. Here are my haods, eager to ordain sisters who are prepared."

Later Moore told the congregation. * Today we see the agooy and brokenness of our church by the presence of the five dearoos who may not be ordained. All of us share their pain."

Early this summer the dean of an Episcopal theological school told the praduation audience that he would resign if the seminary did oot hire "an ordained female Anylican faculty member". But the culminating event came at an ordina-tion service on June 15 when Dean Edward Harris of the Episcopal Divioity School, Cambridge, Massachusetts called upno Episcopal bishoos to ordain wonien to the priestbood " without further delay".

In a sermon outlining theological reasons for ordaining women nriests, Harris said the basic qualification for the priesthood was not masculinity but re-decoved humanity. He was thoroughly persuaded God was calling women to the priesthood and the church "has the call aod duty" to oney. The ordination of women was necessary in liherate the priesthood of reconciliation from its male-ness, he said, and it was essential for the oroper functioning of that oriesthood, I call upon the hishops of our church to ordain to the priesthood without further delay those women who are oresently deacons with oroper time in office, and who have in fact been called and qualified by God.'

For Bisbop Robert DeWitt, the course of actinn was clear. On July 10 he contacted those women seeking ordination to the priesthood, and interested bishops, and lold them. "We are rot talkine about 'whether'—we've talking about that too long. We are talking about 'when_and where and bow '

For the women it was an azonizing decisioo. Should they remain within the system, trusting that one day it would recognize their eligibility for priestbood? Or should they challenge the system and risk not only their jobs, but their future within the courch ? Fleven women decided that, for them. the time was now. As the Rev Berry Schiess said. "What the church is saying to women (in refusing to ordain them priests) is so utterly degrading that for me to stay on as a deacoo and not participate would be as abough 1 had made peace with the oppressor."

Several bishops dropped nut of the service as opposition to it spread through-out the Episcopal Church. But B'shops DeWitt, Corrigan and Welles retured to reconsider: they were responding in the will of God, and could only no other command. For Bishop Ramos, the only active diocesan hishop to participate to the service, there was an additional reason: "Is the church committed to and an instrument of the liberating gaspel of our Lord Jesus Christ?" In an age of oppression, the church sinned hv sileoce and complicity, said Bisbop Ramos. Recalling the church's silence while American blacks were heing soopressed, he pointed out that civil dis-nbedience had been the weapon that brought down an onjust and oppressive system. So, too, the hishops were com-mitting an act of ecclestastical disobedicoce to abolish a discriminatury and un Cbristian system of canou law.

Christian system of canon law. As 2,000 people from aeross the United States gathered in the Church of the Advocate oo July 29, the mond was reminiscent of the spirit of the civil rights movement—a teosion herause of the un-known consequences awaiting the partici-paots, coupled with a seose of unity, of sisterhood and hotherhood that was almost taugible.

Dr Willie drew on this parallel in his sermon when he said, "I stand ready to suffer the consequences of my actions. koowing, as Marnin Luther King offen said. that uncarned suffering is redemotive." He castigated the church for its sexisor and undemocratic decision-making. It was an unjust law of the state which demeaned blacks by making them sit at the hack of the bus, he said ; it was an unjust law of the church which demeans women hy denyine them the opportunity to be priests. He told the congregation that io both the civil rights and the women's movement there was a tendency for unfulfilled hape to turn to rage and despair."

Although the women's ordinations have been declared invalid by the Episcopa House of Bishops it does appear that the ordinations achieved what the participants hnped-the church has been confronted with the injustice of its actions.

This was apparent in the House ni Bishops which faced with an apportunity of disciplining its errant members, backed away from the issue and administered nuls a verbal rap on the knuckles. Bishop Allin is also in an ameliorative mood, with no desire to press charges. The issue now rests with the 1976 General Conventioo, and it seems inevilable that it will have to authorize women priests. If it does not, it is safe to predict a second wave of irregular ordioatioos will sweep through the Episcopal Church. As Bishoo DeWitt said after the Phila delphia service : "If General Convention doesn't authorize women priests there are a lot of other bishops who will do what we've done today."

The day of rest from competi-on, as they call it bere, draws to close with the crickets still chirruping frantically in the hedges controloging framically in the neeges round the press centre and even the tree Cinzano tent, is less besieged than usual by reporters, as the British athletes sensibly disappear to the seaside.

Their team manager, James Biddle, was able to draw breath blinde, wad say that, after three days of the eleventh Buropean Athletics champlouships, he was "pretty well satisfied with per-formances so far, considering the forthances so tar, considering the standard in several events is as high as the Olympics". Bowles on Stan Bowles, the Queen's Park Rangers forward and a controver-slal figure in top class football, has been placed on the transfer list at his own request, it is under-stood, for persodal reasons. It is estimated that Bowles's transfer fee will be in the region of £200,000 to £250,000. Bowles made his request to the manager, Gordon Jago, who accep-red it. He has gained a reputation for doing the unexpected. Last May, when a member of the Eng-land party under the caretaker managership of Joe Mercer, he walked out of his hopel just before the players were leaving for Scot-land and a few homs later was seen at the White City greyhound stadium.

the players were heaving for Scor-land and a few homs later was seen at the White City greyhound stadium. His action provoked the com-ment from Mr Mercer: "Nothing surprises me what Stan Bowles does." Later Bowles apologised to Mr Mercer. Bowles apologised to Mr Mercer. Bowles, who is 25, has been one of the key players in Queen's Park Rangers enccess in the first division. A strong force-ful and mercurial type of player and a goal getter, Bowles has played three times for England. Bowles earned an "unmanage-able" tag when he started his career with Manchester City. He went oo loan to Bury and later Crawe Alexandra before moving to Carliste United. Rangers paid fillo,000 for him two years ago and he rewarded Mr Jago's faith in him by rapidly developing into one of the country's most exciting strikers. Bowles has 6cored 36 goals. Rumours have persisted that he was never really happy with Ren-gers. He spologised to trammates in February after a report that he was unsettled, had upset pre-parations for their FA Cup tie at Coventry. His wife Ann said at the time: " Stan's problem is me. I had never been outside Man-chester before we moved to Lon-don, I am tartibly homesick, and can't settle in the south." Bowles has been transfer-listed is the manager's decision and I back him up."

Boycott, who collected the man of the march sward, started brightly enough with 12 runs from Graham's opening over, which also iocluded a strong leg before appeal, and the run rate continued at a pace until Underwood and Johnson appeared. They then cut the rate to just over two an over, even though Lumb pulled John-son for a six. Underwood's first spell of seven overs produced just one run, and be finished with fig-ures of 10 overs for three runs.

His loving memoir of his father, Auguste, described so enchanted childhood in the Renoir circle, where all artistic Paris of the Belle Epoque were Paris of the Selle Epoque were friends and neighbours and uncles and aunts to the little Jean; aod in which youthful im-pressions iocluded all the popular shows on Montmartre, the Expositioo Universelle of 1900, and the magic cinema of Georges Méliès.

Auguste Renoir thought his son should be a ceramist; and Jean Recoir got so far as open-iog a pottary; hut the lure of the cinema was irresistible. By the time he had done his military service in the First World War, and been wounded, he was inescapably enthralled by Charlie Chaplin, Harry Piel and Pearl White, and was going to the pictures twice a day.

He married one of his father's last models, the actress father's last models, the actress Catherine Hessling; and she was to be the start of his earliest films, La Fille d'eau, Nana and Charleston. He threw himself delightedly into the commercial side of things, and unashamedly designed films for a popular audieoce. His first sound film was a version of a naughry was a version of a naughry Feydeau comedy On Purge Bébé, in which he worked for the first time with Michel Simon.

Reckoniog that the commer cial success of this film had hought him the right to make the films he wished to make, he adapted La Fouchardière's fatalistic oovel La Fouchardieres fatalistic oovel La Chienne, and René Faochoï's farce Boudu sauvé des eaux-turning its tale of a dreadful old tramp

"Kate Hayden", begins the synopsis, nicely cap-turing the ione of the film, "shares the beauty of mountain meadows and a certain roman-tic kind of poverty with her lover Sam, a struggling young musician, and baby, Jill, her daughter by a brief teenage marriage".

As objectionable as her pro-totype Ali McGraw, Kate becomes utterly intolerable when she discovers she has a very nasty timour on her knee which, though faial and giving rise to an artistic limp, doesn't seriously affect her looks. Renoir was given the oppor-tunity to make the film by Marcel Pagnol, author of the Marius trilogy; and the story is set in the district of Les Martigues, near Pagnol's Mar-seillea. The idea came from a dossier on a real-life crime passionnel, compiled by the local police chief. Renoir chose to sboot the film in the actual. settings, using real laodscapes and houses instead of studio sets, and working with a largely non-professional cast made up of the inhabitants of Les Martigues. Toni is an Italian Immigraoi, wbom we see arriving off the train at the start of the film, full of anxious rope. The series All in a Day-television's answer to the Aristotelian unities—has been laid aside. The call for sechoicians and equipment to he in use at many different points simultaneously makes it an expensive format, and the number of eveots which could be told io this way is necessarily small. Nevertheless its conventions have worked heautifully when bandled with discipline, humanity and humour, and they will doubtless he drawn on in the future when-ever a suitable subject comes up. Roger Mills and Michael Houldey, respectively producer and director of Only o Gome, used them extensively in this breath-by-breath account of June 18, 1974. In case anybody June 18, 1974. In case anybody missed it, that was the day Scotland played Brazil in the World Cup at Frankfurt, and drew 0-0. On the same even-ing the Yugoslavs heat Zaire 9-0, and effectively settled Scotland's hash in the compen-tion. Sixteen crews in seven countries showed us how they took the oews in Rio, Glasgow ond Zlatibor (what about Kin-shasa?) and how they passed it on from Frankfurt, Geneva, Brussels and London.

more important. This was not a programme about football, or even much about people, though we did see snatches of the game.

It was a programme about the processing of words and pictures along a network of lines eocircliog the earth. Most of the hardware was already in placa for the coverage of the games, so Mills and Houldey worked with existing local crews, ex-cept in Yugoslavia where the robust and beatific scenes of a farmer sittiog down to his glut of goals from Gelsenkirchen were filmed by a director from Belgrade—one who, incident-ally, did not see fit to show us the actual picture emerging from the merry peasant's hox.

Communication was that theme : splitting the picture for Eurovision, Intervision and satel-lite; bouncing it off a white mushroom and several radar dishes deep in Bavaria, banishing gremlins from the line in Brussels; gatting the ITV commentator off the BBC picture (7.22 pm: panic in Wood Lane); one remembers first and last the flapping of hands and the cros-sing of voices. To still them for emoment-and there were many such moments-was to command a hush in the Tower of Babel. But if Scotland had actually beaten Brazil, I think we should have had a programme whose tone would have been less salfabsorbed and whose drama would have beeo more than a

Our fore lies in our own hands. ultimately iovite dictatorship. Our fate lies in our own bands. If we recognize the nightmares which galloping inflation brings, we can abate it. It is a question of priorities. Mr Heath and Mr Carr and all of us say that inflation is the most important issue before the country. We say this, not only because iofla-tion destroys jobs by destroying employers, not only because it savages the vast majority of our population in their savings and plans, but also because all other social and aconomic objectives social and aconomic objectives will be lost unless inflation is while the lost unless initiation is ebated. Growth, social peace, full employment, regional bal-ance, social services—no one of these aims can be sustained if inflation is allowed to continue inflation is allowed to continue at its present or aoything like its present pace. But, you may ask, if inflation is so pernicious, wby was it allowed to get a grip in the first place? Why did auccessive governments for the last score years. led by well-intentioned and intelligent people advised by conscientious officials and economists, take a course which led incorrably and predictably led inexorably and predictably to the present nightmare? I say predictebly, beceuse there were warnings as far back as 1950, charring with painful accurate the second second second second accuracy the course on which the country embarked. Political end economic bis-torians will pronounce in due course. As a participant in the process, 1 may lack their perspective. But at least I know how things seemed to us, why we acted as we did, and with the vision of bindsight where we went astray. So, as a partici-pant. retracing my steps secms the best introduction to the problem.

Moral threat

I begin by accepting my full sbare of the collective responsi-bility. It is oot right for gov-ernment to cleim credit for what goes well unless they accept their share of the blame for whet goes badly. For over the past 30 years governments in this country heve had unpreceremaios.

Inflation is threatening to des- Certainly, Maynard Keynes troy our society. It is threaten- recognized that excessive ing to destroy not just the creation of money is inflationary. I should here emphasize that changes in the relationship between demand end supply do not instantly affect prices and employment. There is a time lag of many months, or even as much as a year or two. It bas always been known that to create too much money "excess aggregate demand" wbat the economists call itis to court the danger of inflation. But government after government cbose to take the risk, for several—in themselves risk, for several—in memories in the several—in memory and the several—in memory as a several—in memory and the several—in memory and the several and the several several and the several seve all, that muld totation saemed a nainless way of maiotaining full employment, encouragiog growth and expanding the social exercices—all highly desired objectives. We see now that inflation has turned out to be a murtal threat to all three. In this speech I am concentratiog an employment. I shall discuss nn employment. I shall discuss growth on annther occasion. It was feared that the apparently high levels of un-employment and the low rate of growth which resulted when-ever sound mnney policies were essayed would create intolerbave had negative real unem-ployment, that is a shortage of labour-wbat you might call fuller-than-full employment.

Wib the wisdom of bindsight —and if we don't all have the wisdom of foresight, let us at least bave the wisdom of bindsight-I now see thet any effecsight—I now see thet any effec-tive incomes policy must be based on sustaining the overall balance between demaod and supply. By this I mean demand for and supply of goods and services at a level of full employment which can be sus-tained. If supply and demand are oot in balance, if money is being pumped into the economy at a faster rate than the growth at a faster rate than the growth of goods end services, no incomes policy can conceivably mitigate inflation, let alone prevent it. Even if the administretive and political power of govern-meot can hold down wages in some sectors, inflation will emerge with redoubled force in other sectors less susceptible to control. We bave seen the of people like building workers, secretaries, engineers on plece retes, all rocket. Let us not forget the understandable out-rage and the widespreed resentment at the soaring rise of property values—a byproduct of infletion—felt by those whose incomes were held down. The property values have since

We were havered by the four of shadow of the nineteen-thirdes. We were haunted by the fear of long-term mass unemployment, the grim, hopeless dole queues and towns which died. So we talked ourselves into believing that these gaunt, tight-lipped men in caps and mufflers were round the corner, and tailored our policy to match these im-aginary conditions. For imaginary is what they

For imaginary is what they were. There never was serious unemployment since the war on anything remotely like the scale or conditions of the nineteen-thirties—and could not have been had we not seriously de-bilitated the economy by pro-longed inflationary policies. Since the war until the present critical period there bas een virtually no unemployment on Keynesian terms on a national as opposed to a regional scale. For practically the whole period we have had full employment on a meaningful yardstick. Indeed, for much of the tima we

Unemployment excess demand, they cannot be cured by incomes policy.

But you will ask, bow do I square this with the monthly unemployment statistics which receive banner beadlines and strike gloom into politicians' hearts-five bundred thousand, six hundred thousand, fears of oce million unemployed ? Is this not ample justification for reflation for spending our way out of unemployment as out of unemployment—as Keyoes is said to have prescribed in those days wheo he overthrew classical economics ? No. it is not. And if we wish to fight the battles of the seventies with the weapons of the thirties we would do well to find out what was actually said and dooa in the thirties, not laast by Keynes himself. We owe that much to the memory of a great man. Unlike many of his followers. Keynes was discriminatiog in his definitions of unemnlovand dispertions—while house aggregating all categories of prices, interest rates, and the registered unemployed as a pay which cannot be controlled hasis for prescribing policies

On the constrary, he stressed, and all reasonable men in his day accepted, that there were widely differing phenonema included under the umbrella term unemplayed, and that each needed its own snecific treatment What helned one eroded, but the resentment

Then, there is fraudulent unemployment, thet is to say, people who draw benefit while earning money. There is evidence of this in casual occupations lika the buildiog industry. It helps explain why et one period the statistics showed a huodred thousand unemployed in the building Industry while builders all over the country

Only when we have deducted all these caregories, the fric-tional—say up to eight weeks between jobs—the unenthusi-astic, the unemployable, the fraudulent and the alderly who are obliged to register—do we have the real involuntary un-employed in the Keynesian sense, that is to say people who are both willing aod able to work and who have beeo uo-employed for over eight weeks. His thesis was that even During the postwar period, their numbers will have fluctutheir numbers will have indicated ated between ooe aod three hundred thousand or so. They tend to be uoskilled, semi-skilled or less skilled, older than average, and a substantial proportion of them are in the less prosperous areas. when there was large-scale medium and long-term involuntary unemployment, the proper way of dealing with it would not necessarily be to increase money supply or demand. What was said and done in bis name has bean quite different. For much of the past 20 years, successive govern-ments, faced with a rise in registered unemployed, hava deliberately increased public sector spending. This has been fioanced not by real savings but by Bank of England operations. partment's own statisticians recognize, vacancies registered recognize, vacancies registered with unemployment exchanges account for about a quarter to a third of all vacancies. These are, for the most part, vacancies in the sort of job at the kind of pay and conditions which keep these jobs substantially though not fully manned. Every-one can give examples: there though not fully manned. Every-one can give examples: there is the building iodustry, public services all over the country---transport, bospitals, drivers---in-cluding London; steel works and shipbuilding in Scotland and the North East of England; and the North East of England; many engineering works. All these labour sbortages coexist with large numbers of registered unemployed and much smaller numbers of involuntary un-employed in a Keynesian seose. It is therefore quite fair to it has been brought to a protect halt. This bas usually been through a starling crisis, which itself bas been a result of excess demand at home. Of course, in a boom all kinds of unemploy-ment are for a brief period reduced. But the boom is a cruel say that for almost the whole of the postwar period there wera on a national basis several times as many real vacancies as keynes's term. We have had most of the time fuller than full employmeot, we have had oationally an overall shortage of labour.

How otherwise should we have been able to ebsorb over one million workers from overthe rest of the familiar troubles. Sterling sinks and import prices seas? Most of them have been unskilled or semi-skilled, as were the majority of our regis-tered unemployed. If so many could fied work at any given time, there must here been work.

Let me pose the choice with which successive governments have been faced on several occasions since the war. Oo the ooe hand, upemplayment figures heve risen by, say, a quarter of a million or even three huodred to four hundred thousand As we have seen, unemployment statistics overstate the real num ber of involuntary unemployed -in the Keynsian sense-at this fold. Home demand is still in excess of supply; this is reflected in the level of balance of payments deficit and by the contrast between the number of involuntary unemployed and the real current vacancies Indiple of those reported in labour exchanges. On each occasion, the govern of demand rather than focreas-ing it, different techniques for ment-by which I mean almost every post-war government-ba every post-war government---ma chosen to boost home demand by deficit financing, in spite of the virtual certainty that the addicional balance of payment deficits generated would oblige them to call a halt fairly some them to call a halt fairly som and thereby lose at least a many jobs as they were creating, while keeping the additional infinition. ing, while keep additional inflation.

My point is that (by logic of hindsight) on such occasion governments should weigh the short-lived—I repeat short-lived —benefits they may bring the ouarter of a millinn nr eve thousand men and the families, against the permanen -and I repeat permanent repercussions of such definit finencing on the whole popula-tion of 55,000,000 people. All these 55,000,000 people. All these 55,000,000 people have on each such occasion since the way seen inflation increasingly sumuleted and savings increas ingly eroded.

But these are short-If policies are in be judged by the criterion of the greatest good of the greatest number lived. The other side of the coin is that there are grave shortages then excessive expansion of the and found wholly wanting in practice and theory alike of labour—and therefore goods —long delivary dates, waiting lists, increased imports and all

I mey be told that making even temporary work for a fer hundred thousand people is the stering sinks and import prices rise. The jobs gained in the boom or "go" yeer have in-evitably been lost in the next recession or "stop". Wages and prices alike are much more sticky in the face of downward people off henefit and in temporary jobs will be in 199 more important thao aoythis else. In retrospect it seems to me the retrospect it seems to me that inflation is largely a self-inflicted wound. I once be-lieved thet much of our Infla-tion, particularly recently, was a product of rocketing world prices—and they certainly made things much more difficult-but they are not the dominant causa. In general terms you could say that inflation is the result of trying to dn too much, too quickly. In more specific-ally economic terms, our infla-tinn has been the result of the creating of new money-and the consequent deficit financing-out of proportion to the addi-tional goods and services evailtional goods and services evail-ahle. When the money supply grows ton quickly, inflation results. This has been known for centuries. Unil a few years and I should not have had to labour the point. way to abate inflation caused by excessive money supply is like trying to stop water coming excessive money supply is out of a leaky bose without turning off the tap; if you stop one hole it will find two others. We tried incomes policy-more than once; Labour tried incomes policy. The great and the good favoured it-and many still do. But bltter experience reinforces elementary economic logic—with excess demand it will not work. All this I spelt out when winding up the debate out when winding up the debate on the Fey Board for the Opposition on July 22 this year. The all-party parliamentary sub-committee came recently te-the firm conclusion that incomes policy is neither desir-eble nor workable. I wish their admirable recent the eble nor wotkable. I wish their admirable report and the evidence on which it was based were widaly read and digeated. But long before this year, we knew all the arguments. We had used them in Opposition in 1966-70. Why then did we try incomes policy again? I suppose that we desperately wanted to be-liave in it because we were so apprehensive about the alternaapprcheosive about the alterna-tive : sound money policies. To us, as to all postwar gov-ernments, sound money may have seemed out-of-date; we were dominated by the fear of them-on Friday ofternoon : they would carely he in another by the fallowing Monday maraing. Nor would they neressarily take the first ich offered. They would chan arnund, they might prior take a few dave' additional holiday. The more intr griog. the longer they can afford to Inok around. They have savings, there is unemolovotent benefit. there are tax renavments, in a dundance navments. At most rimes in recent years, frictional immunityment as variously defined will have accounted for a nuarter in a third of all remistered unemplayed.

Then there is a whole spec-trum of people who are not easy to plece or keep at work. They range from the inadequate who need belp, through the "diffi-cult to place"—due to age or Ill-hcalth or other factors to the actual scrounger. A recent study reported to the Monthly Gazette of the Department of Employment—March issue this year—describes a part of this group as "somewhat uncothusiastic in their attitude to work" and estimates that the voluntary unemployed—as this whole col-lection of groups is known—in Micbael Leapman reports on Brighton : The only surprise about Harold Wilson's speech to Congress yesterday was the time it bappened. At five to three a usually bighly reliable source came to assure me it would be at 3.30, the time on the press release. At just three o'clock Wilson arrived on the podium and hegan. No doubt surprise about podium and hegan. No doubt his advisers calculated that the speech was so long ha should get stuck into it as early as possible.

Though absorbing, the speech compared not at all well with Tuesday's gem by James Callachan, sitting behind Wilson, putting up a brave sbow of enjoyment.

It is clear that the Govern-tion of relatively low earners with large families who would be better off unemployed, and of the maoy more who would scarcely be any better off if they were at work. In the light of this, we should express ad-miration for the bundreds of thousands of lower-paid workers with sizable families who resist the demoralizing influence of our well-intentioned welfare system and go on doing a fair week's work regardless. We ought to do more about such people, but expanding demand will not turn them into

From time to time the ministry car-ries out local checks, and suddenly the number of registered unemployed melts away. How many fraudulent upenployed there are at any given time can only be estimated, but they probably account for at least a tenth of registered unemployed at normal times.

Labour shortage

Another group, which eccouots for balf the non-manual unemployed, consists of white collar workers compulsorily retired at 50 with occupational pansions but required to stay on the register till 55 if they ara to be excused the national insurance contribution and still be entitled at 65 to the retirement pension. Sir Keith Joseph's speech also seems to hase itself too much on a national rather than an international monetary analysis. Here again there are two views. There are those who believe that inflation is a monetary disease best understood in terms of the control of the national money supply by the individual national government, and those who believe that it is a monetary disease which is international in character, dependent on the world money supply. Those, like Monsieur Rueff, who regard gold as the only certainly finite money supply take the intar-national view of the problem, and can certainly point to the rapid ecceleration of world infla-tion since 1971, when the United Statea dollar ceased to be convertible in terms of gold. Undoubtedly we are dealing with a world and not merely a Britisb inflation; presumably therefore we need a world and not merely a British explanation. Yet when these differences are expressed they do not really detract from agreement with what Sir Keith Joseph is saying. So far as the first difference is concerned, it is prohably that incomes policy can he an assistance to monetary policy, hut certain that it cannot he a substitute for it. So far as the second difference is concerned, an international attack on inflation would he dependent on individual countries putting their own money supply in order. Sir Keith Joseph is proposing that the British Government should do what needs to be done in Britain. That must he helpful to the world situation, whatever view one takes of the causes of the world inflation.

There is a real political advaotage for the country in Sir Keith Joseph coming out with this analysis. It provides the sound money group in the Conservative Party with a senior leadership which they have heen lacking since Mr Enoch Powell left them. There is also the advantage that Sir Keith Joseph does not have to be taken as a package. Mr Powell is extreme in his view of European and takes a very Protestant line on Northern Ireland. Those who do not share his views on immigration, Europe or Northern Ireland might he converted to his monetary views hut would not in the least wish to support him in his other roles.

get policies which Sir Keith Joseph is advocating were much those which were actually followed by Mr Roy Jenkins. This is not a party matter.

Coming just hefore a General Election such new policy think-iog does create a difficulty for the Conservative Party. Sir Keith Joseph is not the Shadow Chancellor, though Mr Carr is not a touchy man. Mr Heath at any rate would not go along with the whole of Sir Keith Joseph's speech and indeed obviously shares the responsibility for the truly monumental monetary misjudgments of Mr Barber's Chancellorship. No douht at the first press conference of the election campaign, if not earlier, Mr Heath will be asked whether he agrees with Sir Keith Joseph's views and whether those views are in fact compatible with the Conservative Party's official posi-On incomes policy it is tion. iodeed probable that it is Mr Heath who has got it more nearly right at least in seeing that the monopoly power of the trade unions is a real factor which has to be counteracted.

Handicap

Another political handicap for the Conservatives will be that the Labour Party will say that Sir Keith Joseph is in favour of unemployment, that the Tories want to have higher unemployment in order to end infletion, and thet this is very wicked and wrong. By the standards of postwar politics Sir Keith Joseph has handed a hlunderbus loaded with dnck shot to Mr Wilson and invited bim to hlow the Conservative Party's head off. Yet the strength of his analysis of unemployment should go a long way to protect Sir Keith Joseph against this obvious counter attack. It is indeed not certain that this speech will turn out to have damaged the Conservative Party. There is now one man, not on the fringe of British politics, not the fringe of Brinsh points, not alienated from his party, who stands for ending inflation by the only means through which infla-tion can he ended. Look at the contrast hetween Sir Keith Joseph's speech and Mr Wilson's speech at Brighton. Sir Keith loseph offers a definite plan Joseph offers a definite plan, within the power of government, to stabilize the money supply and thereby to stabilize the value of money. Mr Harold Wilson claims that "our policies, our place we believe that a combination of sound money policies with incomes policy is more likely to he politically workable than view we take for a simple reason. During the period in which sound money is being restored there are likely to be many high wage settlements hased on previous expectations. Greater force

With Sir Keith Joseph there is no such difficulty. His advocacy will give much greater political force to the case for sound money, an argument which is by no means confined to the Conservative Party but is having increasing influence in the Labour Party and among Liberals as well. Many people of all political opinions are coming to realize that whatever else is done, this is the essential condition of bringing inflation to an end, and that inflation must he brought to hopes for a hetter future, depend upon making a reality of this partnership in the social contract. There is no other way Sir Keith Joseph has built his house on rock; Mr Wilson not only offers the blueprint of a house built on quicksand, hut of a peculiarly agneous quicksand which has heen seen to swallow up a whole estate of previous houses, including Tory ones. In the election it will not necessarily be bad for the Conservatives that the leadership of those who can state precisely how they intend to end ioflation. and precisely why they believe that their methods can succeed, has passed into Conservative What Sir Keith Joseph hends. has done may therefore prove to he good for his party. It will certainly be good for his country. It is a wise speech and it comes with the sharp shocl: of truth.

WILL IT END WITH AN ENGLISH ASSEMBLY?

If further proof is needed that appear hefore an election is the nationalist parties are making the running in Scotland and Wales it is to he found in the poses. haste of the United Kingdom parties to bead them off with devolutionary proposals of their OWD.

The Liberals have long been federalists, on the insular as well as the continental scale. The Conservatives with Mr Heath as leader took an uncertain step in the direction of political devolution in Scotland a few years ago. Labour until the other day was staunchly centralist, although its attachment to home rule in earlier years is now recalled with pride. All three parties now sense that there is a risk of separatism in Scotland getting out of hand and their own positions crumbling as a consequence. All are looking, a bit desperately, for a stable point somewhere on the scale of possible constitutional relationships which stretches from union of the kind now practised to formal dismemberment of the kingdom.

The Lahour Party in Scotland baving just undergone a conversion as theatrical as Mr Scanlon's Righton, the party as a whole is now free to put in its devolutionary hid. This it has done in a statement from its home policy sub-committee. The statement has not heen adopted by the national executive committee. Still less does it possess the status of a white paper. A white paper on devolution is expected, Dut since it may not actually they engender ministers and a

"Labour has not made the mistake tha Conservatives have made of writing over the face of their proposals a deep reluctance at having to make them at all. The Conservatives, with an indirectly elected Scottish assembly having a snhordinate legislative function and a merely advisory role in the execution of policy-though apparently leading to a directly elected assembly-have retained only one advantage for themselves: they are now the least had choice for Scotsmen, and there must still he some, who think the whole idea of political devolution within the kingdom is mistaken. The Lahour Party statement, hy contrast, goes for a heefed-up Kilbrandon scheme. Directly elected assemblies in Scotland and Wales (elected though hy the first-past-the-post method still in use for Westminster) with, in the case of Scotland, legislative powers in all matters now requiring separate Scottish Bills. Both assemblies would "assume many of the present functions of the Scottish and Welsh Offices ", and housing, education, health, economic and environmental planning are cited as examples. Cabinet in the manner of the Stormont Parliament. The Labour paper does not say which.

The assemblies would be furnished with a block financial allocation which they would carve up between services (the Conservatives bave a similar idea, only with the Secretary of State doing the carving with the assembly at his elhow). They would be given "substantial executive powers in the trada and industry fields", with, one gathars, Whitehall departments retaining concurrent powers. The paper deals rather skilfully with the Nationalist's street cry of Scotland's oil". It tacitly agrees with the proposition that the chief public interest in the economic henefits from oil in the North and Celtic Seas should he in the regeneration of areas suffering from economic decline. hut then, appealing to the hrotherhood principle, insists that hits of England are no less entitled to such help than Scot-

All this is not to disturb the offices of Secretary of State for Scotland aod Wales-although there would he little left for them to do except argue with the Treasury and in Cabinet about the size of the annual financial allocations for their territories-or the "full", by which is meant overall", representation of Scotland and Wales at Westminster. Someone sooner or later will heve to impress on the Scots and the Welsh that if they want extensive management of their own affairs to the exclusion of Westminster they must reconcile themselves to less intensive management of English affairs than their disproportinoate inclusion at Westminster now affords them.

Management of childbirth

From Professor Richard Beard Sir, The exchange of letters between Professor Rhodes (August 22) aod Mrs Whyte (August 26) on the man-agement of childbirth hrings into the open a difference of viewpoint hetween obstetricians and the public that I believe is recoocilable.

Whatever Mrs Whyte may think, most modern obstetricians are aware of the chenge in attitude of their perieots towards childhirth that bas taken place in receot years. Young women in general are more conscious of the fact that their emotions are an important force regularing their lives. They also know what an enriching experience pregnancy and labour can be, and they expect those who care for them (doctors and nurses) to understand this. What Mrs Whyte may not be fully aware of are the considerable advances that have been made over the pest 10 years in the techniques for safeguarding both mother and baby, particularly during lebour.

To suggest that we should go hack the days of " home confinement " is like asking a modern surgeon to remove an appendix on the kitchen table. Undoubtedly most of his patients would survive the experience but there would he a few who because of lack of specialised facili nes would suffer. So it is with childbirth. Generally labour is en-tirely safe, mother and baby doing Gynaecology, St Mary's Hospital, W2 August 26.

The Open University

From Dams Margaret Cole Sir, To your issue of August 27 Mr St John Stevas contributed a gloomy couple of columns on the possible "loss of faith" in universides. exemplified by their present proubles aod in particular to the sharp de clica in the numbers of would-he entraots. Towards the end of the article he gave, in helf a seotence, a gentle pat to the Open University : I wonder whether be has studied the working of that university or thought of its significance in conexion with the falling-off of applications for entrance to which be had previously referred.

For the Open University has witnessed no falling-off: on the contrary, the pressure of those desiring to enrol with it has actually forced the Secretary of State, at a time wheo almost everything educational is being cruelly cut, to allow it to expand its jotake, and therefore, of course, its cost to the nation. We have no detailed statistics, such as are regularly provided for so many educational institutions, for the Open University. Maybe we shall he given them soon; but it is clear, in the meantime, that the demand for its services is greet, the social and occupational field of its cotraots pretty wide, and the "drop-out", so far, considerably less than was confideotly predicted at an earlier stage.

What is the reason for this ? What is the peculiar appeal of the Open University? To answer this fully would require long and careful study -which, I suggest, it should now receive-but two facts stand out.

First, the university is a university of part time students. That is to say, it is enrolling those who cannot, for one reason or another, afford the expenditure of time and/or the for-going of current earnings which is involved in full-time study at an

real constants of the second s

wherever labour is cood But there are a few (aod they add up to more that a few wheo the total for the country is computed) whose bables suffer irreparable damage or death. Obstetricians can protect about half the mothers whose hables will suffer from lack of oxygen in labour, hut the other half can only he protected from disaster by close surveillance in bospital.

What is needed to resolve the differing views of Professor Rhodes and Mrs Whyte is to determine what the patient wants while at the same time ensuring that she receives the best medical care possible. Home delivery, even if the service were generally available is just not acceptable if the safety of the mother, and particularly her baby, are prime considerations. Thus the nnus is on the obstetrician to try and meet the emotional needs of his patients. Clearly nothing can equal the support, provided by the home environment, but the acceptance of the husband at the delivery and the insistence that a sympathetic atti-rude is adopted by all the parlent's attendants cao go a long way to-wards making childbirth in hospital a pleasurable experieoce.

ordinary university (eveo if the university is not "residential" in the strict sense of the word), meaning, for so many, a hectic few weeks of study followed by a desperate attempt in vacation to combine "vacation study" with sufficient paid work to finance the next stages. Secoodly, it combines all the known forms of teaching-tutordirected correspondence teaching, lectures and instruction on the media, "aids" of various kinds, and residential discussion, eg, at a summer school-all combined into a programme worked out and published in advance.

Thirdly, the enrolled student can ter a programme of study tailored to his iodividual needs and desires, and an adviser or tutor (whichever you call it) to help him with advice and correction right through his course. No doubt, there are certain things which he will miss, which he would have had if he had etteoded full-time at one of the older universines-the coostent association with others of his kind, for example, and the "gracious living" amid college lawns and ancient aod heautiful buildings. No one would deny those advantages. But they do, as Mr Stevas has poioted out, cost a great deal; and under preseot fioancial circumstances, ought we out seriously to consider the possibility of expanding considerably tha ex-periment which has already showo such success, and so giving, at com-paratively small cost, education of university standard (in which many members of university staffs are already taking part to the many who still have little hope of it?

London orchestras From Mr Alan Bluth

Sir, Howard Shell's answer to my original point, in his article "Deve-loping London's orchestral tradi-tion" (August 22), seems confused. If there were hut two orchestras in London, the Arts Council subsidy now given to four could he allotted to two. Neither the LSO nor the LPO, which would stand a good chance of being the (enlarged) survivors, have grasped thet. As to Hardie Ratcliffe's rider to the Peacock Report it does not appear that in other cities players are unwilling to remain in the chief orchestras, as loog as their position and conditions are adequately assured, and I wonder just how often players in, say Amsterdam have to supplement their income with TV and commercial work. The crux of the matter is that no hody in their right mind, if they were starting from scratch, would in today's conditions set up four subsidized orchestras even in a city of London's size. Mr Shell hegs the question when he says that our four are "flourisbing": he should attend more of their concerts.

Jews in Russia

From Mr J. L. Hendeles Sir, Events to date bave refuted the very argumeous which Mr Normao Davies propounds (Arricle, August 28). The Soviet authorities are not indifferent to world opinion, neither cao they completely ignore Ameri-can Jewish pressure, for American Jewry is not without iofluence in the United States. Sioce Soviet Russia would fare hadly without American grains, it follows that the Soviets can no looger afford to alienate American Jewry as they did Stalin's day. in

Might I remind him, the bowever, that the irresistible urge which prompts Soviet Jewry to seek emigration permission is the faci that Jews are again regarded as second class citizens in Soviet Russia.

Centre Point flats

From Mr J. M. S. Wolter Sir, Were I a ratepayer in the Borough of Camden, I would he extremely concerned about the council's wasteful use of funds in purchasing 36 flats in the Centre Point complex. Now surely is the time for all who have views to explain them fully and clearly to the country-now before the elec-tors are asked to make their decision. We shall be living here after the election and wish the country to be fit for our children and grandchildren to live in. Our present plight is in good measure the result of putting sbort-term political con-venience so high. On several occasions over the past 20 years, residue experimention socialist exaggeration of un-employment levels, together with marches on Parliament, play-octing the 1930s, has stampeded us into rash over-expansion, with resultant price increases and economic disloare spending overseas every day £121m more than we are earncation. But if we can in fact gradually start moderating the trend rate of growth of money supply -which entails also moderating tha budget deficit-then the balance of payments deficit, and after a lag, the rate of in-flation will start to ease. In due course, and without any artificial stimulus or reflation, spontanedus in-built correctives will hegin to make themselves felt. The treatment that will gradu-ally eliminate the balance of payments deficit and the treatment that will gradually abate inflation and the treatment that will gradually give us a firm basis for progress are all more nr less the same. No one can he sure how long it will take to secure asything approaching stable prices and to reverse the downturn in em-ploymeot. A great deal will depend on the attitude of the trade unions. They have it in their power, as Mr Heath em-

There is a case for an educational Pay Board, as I suggested in my speech nn July 18, to spell out the implications. If the consequences for incomes and jobs nf gradually reducing excess demand are to be understood and accepted, then we would be wrong not to use any instru-ment that could help in this

But it is no panacea, and if it were introduced as such it would do more barm than good. Escalator clauses will help only if total demand-money supply- is under firm control. The group, which includes the City of Cologne savings and giro banks and agricultural and in-dustrial co-operatives, bad boped its claims totalling DM518m (£84.3m) could be met better by bankruptcy proceedings instead of a settlement of claims. Howevar, the court ruled it was inadmissible to allow bankruptcy proceedings to begin until final decisions have been made on the current liquidation proceedings against Herstatt. The court said it would not for allow bankruptcy proceedings with to start as long as the slightest chance remained of raaching agreement on liquidation with Herr Hans Gerling, Herstatt's majority sbarebolder. Bankruptcy proceedings could take years to satisfy all credi-tors' claim and if introduced would meao a new liquidator and receiver would have to be appointed.

This would also waste the work done by the present liquidator and provisional receiver. both appointed by the court. Assam and African Investments Limited

The Eleventh Annual General Meeting of Assam and African investments Ltd. was held on 5th September, 1974.

Mr. W. I. T. daC. Whealer, the Chairman, in his review circulated with the Report and Accounts for the year anded 31st Oacamber, 1973, made the following points, inter alia :--

ACCOUNTS AND OIVIOENO

Tha Group profit for the year anded 31st Oecamber, 1973 before cherging texation was £1,211,638 compared with £742,692 for the previous year. After deduction of taxation and the dividand on tha company's preferenca shares, the profit availabla was £416,553.

The Board has recommended an ordinary dividend for the year of 2.814 pence per ahare which, together with the imputation tax credit, is equivalent m 4.2 pence per share (1972 -4 pence per chare).

OUTTURN AND PRICES

Despite a serious drought aerly in the season in lower Assam, the Group outturn in 1973 amounted to 12,104,703 kgs. compared with 12,080,253 kgs. in 1972. In all tha circumstances this result, which meintains the upward crop trend of recent years is satisfactory.

The first of our 1973 Season teas came to somewhat disappointing London market conditions; however, the U.K. stock position was gradually moving more in sellers' favour and a spot ahortaga was reflected in a strengthaning market a trend which reached its peak in March when the prices obtained for tha Group's teas in the London auctions everaged nearly 22%p per kg. more than those obtained during March, 1973. Up to 31st July, 1974 we had sold in London 4,914,893 kgs. of the 1973 crop et an average price of 52.93p per kg. and it is expected that, on completion of all our 1973. season London sales, the total will epproximate 5,650,000 kgs. sold at an average price of not less than 52.50p per kg.: this compares with 5,469,397 kgs. of the 1972 crop sold at an average price of 45.09p.

In India where growing internal consumption of tes has been a major factor in the genaral rise in world tee prices, tha proceeds from the sala of our 1973 teas heve axceeded those of tha previous vears.

OPERATING EXPENDITURE ANO GARDEN WORKING

Bearing in mind the increase in prices for essential garden supplies and progressive uses in lebour and transport costs, the extent to which costs have been contained, without adverse effect on the standard of the product, reflects great credit on tha management in India. Ouring the period under review significant hams within the general inflationary trend included an interim lump sum payment to labour from 1st Saptember, 1973, increases in the costs of fuels and foodstuffs for lebour, an increase in the port aurcherga at Avonmouth and the imposition of a bunker surcharge in November, 1973. Thera were also further Increases in the costs of warehousing and marine insurance.

I am pleased to report that labour ralations with management were again ganarally very satisfactory throughout tha year.

DEVELOPMENT ANO REORGANISATION

In recant years the Group has enjoyed a high reputation as e consistently reliabla producer of good quality taas and your Boerd pleca the greatest importance on maintaining this position. Consequently the 1973 capital expenditure programma was once agein largely devoted to tha provision of equipmant needed in that factories to permit adequate control over that standard of manufactura.

THE OUTLOOK

In considering the company's prospects for 1974, 1-must stress that the axtent of tha increase in costs which has been experienced in recent months is unprecedented in severity. Thus the ovending factor will be the price we obtain for our teas and in this sphere it is pleasing to report that sale prices in Indis have been at a notably higher level then hae been the cese at the start of any recent season. It is axpected that the first of the new season's offerings will also meet afirm demand in the London eucoons.

With the longer term in mind, the future of all sterling companies in India is now circumscribed by tha requirements of the Government of India'e Foreign Exchange Regulation Act which came into force on 1st January, 1974. This Act requires all foreign companies operating in India to apply to the Reserve Benk for permission to carry on business in India and, over a period yat to he epecified, to convert their Indian branches into Rupee companies with Indian participation of not less than 26 per cent, of the equity. Thereis at present no reason m suppose that it is tho Government's intention to apply the Act harshiy but your Board is giving careful consideration to ell the implications of this new legislation, which must be appected eventuelly to leed to changes in the structure of our holdinge end operations in Indie.

The legendary Dick Etheridge, union convener at British Ley-land's Longbridge car plant, is retiring. Remarkably enough for a man who has been des-cribed as the most militant shop steward in the car industry, his bosses will mourn his departure as much as his workmates. ∦XS

For the truth is that for several years now Etheridge has played a highly responsible role. Group sales in the first half of 1974 amounted to £1,444m which is 41% bigher than in the corresponding half of last year. The increase continues to coma mainly from sales made overseas both from local manufacture and from U.K. exports. Sales from sales made overseas both from local manufacture and from U.N. exports sales in the United Kingdom increased from £455m to £598m (up 31°) and those overseas from £569m to £846m (up 49°). The fob value of exports rose from £189m in the first balf of 1973 to £323m in the current balf year (up 71%); the latter included exports to EEC of £109m (up 76°).

The following tabla summarises the quarterly sales and profits before taxation :

TOTIONING LEDIN SUMMINE SES INC	Group sales £ millions	Group profit before tax £ millions
1973 1st Quarter	487	63
2nd Quarter	537	74
3rd Quarter	551	82
4th Quarter	591	92
YEAR	2166	311
1974 1st Quarter	661	122
2nd Quarter	783	132

All major plants throughout the world bave continued to operate at bigh levels of output and efficiency. On sales in the U.K. during the second quarter increasing raw material costs were offset by approved increases in selling prices; there was little change in profit margins which were again below the reference level allowed by the Price Commission. On overseas sales, where selling prices of most products are bigher than the permitted level in the UK, profit margins are still higher than on home sales and, in the second quarter, as in the first, about two-thirds of the Group profits arose from business overseas, including exports from the UK.

The total profits need, bowerer, to be judged in the light of inflation. adjustments were made for the impact of current inflation on these figures, the Group profit before tax of £254m for the first half of 1974 would be some £50m less; this compares with a corresponding reduction of £50m for the whole of the year 1973 for the conditions of inflation which existed then.

The charge for taxation in the first half of 1974 consists of £81m of corporation E30m overseas tax and £11m of tax on principal associated compaoies, less a credit of £9m for investment grants.

After deducting the cost of the interim dividend from the first balf-year's profit, nore than £100m remains in the business; this is necessary to pay for the rising costs of stocks of raw materials and finished products and of replacing plants, and to sustain the business in today's inflationary conditions.

The Board bave declared ao interim dividend of 6.0551 pence (six point nought five five one pence) ner £1 unit of ordinary stock of the Company in respect of the year 1974; this, together with the imputed tax credit of 2.9824 pence is equivalent to 9.0375 pence (gross) compared with the interim dividend of 7.2 pence (gross) paid for 1973. The increase of 1.8375 pence is the maximum amount by which total dividends for the year cao be raised over last year's total of 14.7 pence (gross) uoder the Government's present dividend limitatioo provisions, which would preclude any increase in the final dividend. increase in the final dividend.

The interim dividend now declared, which will absorb £29m, will be payable on 11 November 1974 to members on the Register on 27 September 1974, by which date transfers must be lodged.

TRADE WITH CHINA

On October 2nd The Times will publish a major Special Report on Trade with The People's Republic of China. Timed to coincide with The International Trade Fair in Canton. it will be one of the most important reports on international trade to be published during 1974. Contributors will include David Bonavia, The Times correspondent in Peking, specialist staff writers and leading figures concerned with China's trade and affairs. It will be read not only by the one million influential readers of The Times throughout the world, but copies will also be made available to delegates and officials attending the fair in China. This Special Report thus provides Western Businessmen with a unique platform to promote their goods and services to China at a time when highly important trading decisions are being made.

for year to 30th June, 1974

Comments of the Chairman Mr. R. A. Withers

"The note of optimism that pervaded my review last yeer has proved to be justified by record results for 1974 which show pre-tax profits up from £15,262,000 to £19,152,000 and aamings per share from 30p to 38p. The rate of improvament varied widely from region to region with the United Kingdom, United States and Canada showing substantially greater growth and profitability than Australia and New Zealand. A more detailed examination of the situation will follow in my review to shareholders to be published on 28th October; broadly speaking however, both Australia and New Zealand were adversely affected towards the end of the year by the effect on producers of tha declina in wool and cattla prices, and earlier in the year Australia was stricken by the extensive and destructive floods in Queensland and northern New South Wales. Industrial unrest end rapidly rising costs limited profit improve-mant in both countries. By contrast in our three regions in tha northern hemisphere conditions, although difficult, hava been on the whola more favourabla; in Canada, lumber sales and prices have been buoyant and our trading activitias in both tha United States and Canada have benefited by tha steel femine in both countries. In the United Kingdom, marked progress has been made in the radical reform of our malting and chemical operations, both of which have prospared to an extent that has helped to offset more difficult conditions in livestock and food.

I wish that I could review our future prospects as confidently as I did a year ago, but the Dalgety Group cannot remain immune from a number of factors adversely affecting international business or indeed affecting conditions insida most of the territories where tha Group is involved. Tha most important of these factors is inflation leading as it inevitably does to fevenish cost increases and eventually, as has been so significantly the case with meat, to enatic commodity prices; a related and herdly lass important factor is the high cost of money and the limitation this must impose on expansion; there is furthermore almost worldwida increasing unrest in industrial relations with its disruptive effect on planned progress; end finally a major factor for the future is national attitudes towards foreign owned companies, to any adverse affects of which Dalgety is particularly vulnerable in viaw of our company's substantiel investment in Austrelia and New Zealand where feelings tend to run high on this subject. In view of our very long association with both: countries, however, it is to be hoped that our growth in them will continue.

Despite these necessary warnings or even forebodings I remain confident that your Group's progress, although unlikely to meintain the rate of growth in terms of shaer size that it has shown over the span of the last three years, will continue to expand probably in the less spectacular but equally rewarding direction of organic growth in efficiancy and resultant profitability. In this respect we have built up two great inward strengths; firstly, a better geographical spread and better diversification within that spread; secondly, a high worldwide morala amongst our sanior and increasingly youthful staff upon whom all companies must rely for thair long term prosperity. In this regard I am convinced that no Group stands better placed for future success."

STRENGTHENED POSITION FOR FUTURE

Woodrow Wyatt

Holdings Limited

The Third Acoual General Meeting of Woodrow Wyatt Holdings Limited was held on 5th September in London. The following are extracts from the Directors' Report and Review for the year ended 31st March, 1974:--- tender in 🖉 TRADING RESULTS The group profit for the year amounted to £409,000. This includes the full year's results of donaes where ant of these Hearn's Advertising Service Ltd., Garden House Press Ltd. ably does a and Daventry Binders Limited acquired in 1973. the beens The profits of the Group excluding acquisitions increased Composition from £212,000 to £316,000, an increase of 49 per cent. This AC OF SP was achieved despite the adverse effects which the three-day 101101 (1925) working week had on many of our customers' publications A world. $t : u \in d^{1,2}$

DIVIDENDS In accordance with the provisings of the Counter Inflation (Dividends) Order 1973. the company is not subject to dividend restraint in this year. Therefore, in line with the satisfactory increase in profits, we recommend o finot dividend of 1.34p per share, making a total nf 2.39p per share for the year (equivalent to a gross dividend nf 70 per cent). Shareholders have the choice of receiving thoir dividend in cash or in shares.

PROSPECTS Although the economic and political climate is somewhat clouded, the Directors' confidence in the innate strength of the Group remains undiminished and is reflected in the continuing policy of investing in modern plant and equipment.

The second quarter of the year continued the trend of high profitability established in the first. Group profits for the first six months exceed those earned in any previous year in the company's history-and are almost three times those for the whole of 1973.

Amalgamated Metal Corporation Ltd. maintained its high profit level during the three months to June 30th, due to an active metal market and generally favourable conditions. Although it cannot be assumed that these conditions will continue for the rest of the year, AMC nevertheless predict that 1974's results will prove to he very satisfactory.

The liquidation of Williams Harvey proceeds satisfactorily.

The directors have declared an interim dividend for 1974 on the Ordinary Stock equivalent to 5.97% gross. The last ordinary dividend was an interim of 2.5% gross in 1970.

Copies of the statement may be obtained from the Secretary, 2 Metal Exchange Buildings, London EC3V 1LD.
